

To save a new document in Microsoft Office 2007:

1. Click the Office Button and choose either Save or Save As. When you are working with a new document that has never been saved before the Save and Save As options work in the same manner. (Figure 1)

2. In the Save As dialogue box that displays use the File Name field to name your file. (Figure 2)
3. Select the type of file you would like your file to be using the Save as type field below the File Name field. (Figure 2)
  - a. When using PowerPoint 2007, it is best to save your file as a PowerPoint 97-2003 file. This ensures that all users, regardless of the version of PowerPoint they are running will be able to open and read the document.
4. Use the Save in field to select a location to store the file. (Figure 2)
  - a. Click the drop down arrow
  - b. Select the location for the file
  - c. If you want to put it in a folder within that location, double-click on the folder
